Cassidy and Marshall resumed their fight and the latter, who had with him several friends, chased Cassidy into the street. The fight was warming up nicely when John Dacey, a friend of Cassidy, came along. He had a revolver and tried to shoot the entire Marshall crowd, but his weapon would not work.

Mrs. Dunworth then came to the rescue of Dacey and Cassidy with some paying stones. Just at this time Ray and Donahan came along in a buggy. MISSOURI CROP REPORT. Bulletin of the Weather Service Showing Their Coadition. COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 29.-The following is a synopsis of the weather crop bulletin of the Missouri weather service for the week ending August 25: The mean temperature of the week was about normal in the southern sections, but in the northern sections there was a slight excess. Copions rains fell in nearly all the southern counties and in a few localities in other sections. In many of the central and southwestern counties there was also abundant rain to help the late corn and revive pastures but in nearly all the northern counties the drought still continues. A large number of correspondents report that farmers are obliged feed their stock, and localities stock has to some . be driven long distances to water. In the central and southern portions of the state the rains, together with cool nights, heavier dews and cloudy weather, have been beneficial to all fall crops and grasses and in many counties late corn and pastures are much improved. Quite a percentage of the corn crop in the central and northern counties is being cut and shocked, but a con-siderable portion of the late corn would be all greatly benefited by rain. Seed clover is being harvested and in the central and southern sections is generally reported a good erop. Plowing for fall seeding is pro-gressing well in these sections. Four good rains have fallen in some counties. Apples are still falling badly.

SHUT OUT OF THE MAILS Republican Campaign Supplement De-

plad Admission as Not Legitimate. MANHATTAN, Kan., Aug. 39.-The Manhattan Nationalist, in its issue of August 17 undertook to circulate a supplement through the mails that was alleged to be not in conformity with the postal regulations, said supplement having been issued by the Republican central committee of Kaosas and containing a fac simile of the alleged letter written by Stephen H. Allen, associate justice of the supreme court of Kansas, also a review of the penitentiary scandal and several other articles more or less scandalous in their make-up.

The postmaster here refused to accept the edition as second-class matter and a ruling from the third assistant postmaster general was requested who holds that the supplement is not legitimate and not admissible to the mails as second-class matter.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 29.-A warrant was issued yesterday afternoon for the arrest of Governor Davis . H. Waite on the serious charge of opening and retaining a letter addressed to Mrs. Likens, formerly matron at police headquarters. The warrant was issued by United States Commis-sioner Hinsdale, who also issued warrants for the arrest of President Dennis Mullins of the police board, Hamilton Armstrong, chief of police, and Kate Dwyer, matron at police headquarters. The charge is opening the mail, and also for conspiracy under statutes number 3,829 and 5,440, the penalty for which is a fine of not over $10,000 or two years' imprison-ment, or both.

The complaint was made by Mrs. Likens, and was instigated by Postoffice Inspector McMechan.

Governor Waite created quite a scene in the commissioner's room. He was highly indignant and when Deputy United States District Attorney Rhodes stepped toward him with extended hand the governor met him with a cold stare. Governor Waite pleaded "not guilty." claiming that he had not opened the letter, but that its contents had been read to him. The hearing of the case was set for next Thursday and when it was suggested that bail be fixed at $5,000 the prisoner sprang from his chair, paced the floor in front of the commissioner and exclaimed: "I am the governor of this state and these proceedings are had to interfere with me in the administration of my office. I will not give bail. You may send me to jail, but I will not give bail." Finally the commissioner accepted Governor Waite's personal recognizance to appear for tries in the sum

STABLE ODORS.

They Played a Big Part in Fixing the Fourth of July. Jefferson was fond of telling a story which illustrates in a forceable manner the importance that absurdly Insignificant matters may sometimes assume. When the deliberative body that gave to the world the Declaration of Independence was in session its proceedings were conducted in a Professor Shepherd has resigned hall close to which was situated a liv-the position of assistant in physics and ery stable. The weather was warm, honorable members, and, biting through the silk stockings then in fashion, gave infinite annoyance. It was no uncommon sight, said Jefferson, to see a member making a speech with a large handkerchief in hand Professor E. C. Franklin, assistant in chemistry, has returned from two years' study at Johns Hopkins uni-

The opinion of the body was not unanimous in favor of the document, and, under other circumstances, discussion might have been protracted for days, if not weeks, but the flies were intolerable. Efforts were made pests, but in vain. As the weather became warmer the flies grew worse, and the flapping of handkerchiefs was heard all over the hall as an accompaniment to the voices of the speakers. In despair, at last some one suggested that matters be hurried so that the body might adjourn and get away from the flies. There were a few mild protests, but no one heeded them, the immortal declaration was hurriedly copied, and, with bandkerchiefs in hand fighting flies as they came, the members hastened up to the table to sign the authentic copy and leave the flies in the lurch. Had it not been for the livery stable and its contents there is no telling when the document would have been completed, but it certainly would not have been signed on the Fourth.

HE "FIXED" THE PIANO. The Carpenter Was Given a Job and He

Did His Work Too Well. A Utica, N. Y., family changed their residence from one street to another a few days since. Among the household effects was a handsome square piano, the cover of which had in process of transportation been slightly cracked. When the tuner came he noticed the cracked cover and told the lady of the house that he knew of a man who could repair it so that it could not be noticed. There was a carpenter working about the house and as the cost of moving had been considerable the lady decided to have the carpenter do the work, and informed the tuner that he need not send his expensive expert. Calling the carpenter she showed him the damaged cover and informed him that he could easily fix it with glue. The carpenter set about his task and the lady paid no further attention to

A day or two later she had company and was requested to play upon the piano. Failing, after repeated and strenuous efforts to lift the lid, she was compelled to forego the pleasure of entertaining her guests in this way. When her husband came home he exergised his muscle but to no avail. ent young man, and belongs to an After three or four trials he began an examination and found that the carpenter had labored under the mistaken notion that the lid ought not to rise, and had accordingly placed a that part of the piano upon which it touched. To make the job undeniably complete, he further secured it by

SPARROW SYMPATHY.

An Instance Showing That the Birds Have It for Their Kind.

"While walking along the street in the residence portion of the city last summer," says Dr. H. D. Osterman of Chicago, "I witnessed an incident that illustrated the sympathetic nature of birds. As I was walking along I noticed a little sparrow fluttering on the ground and apparently unable to rise. I stopped and was on the point of going to it to ascertain if possible the cause of its trouble, when all at once I noticed two full grown sparrows fly down from a neighboring tree and alight on the ground near by. I watched with a good deal of interest to see what they would do. The old birds hopped around a minute or two and then one of them picked up a little bare twig about three inches long. The old bird took hold of one end of the stick with his beak, while its companion took hold of the other end in the same manner. They then approached the young bird. that still fluttered helplessly on the ground, and it caught hold of the middle of the stick with its beak. The old birds then flew up to a tree, carrying the young bird hanging to the stick between them to a place of safety."

Virtuous Indignation. Mrs. Peters, who is older than she used to be, but perhaps not so old as she looks, was once standing in a publie waiting-room with one of her neighbors and her neighbor's little daughter, when a well meaning old gentleman made Mrs. Peters angry. He spoke pleasantly to the little girl, and then, turning to Mrs. Peters, said: "Is this your little grandchild?" "Grandchild!" exclaimed Mrs. Peters -"grandchild! Does that girl look like a grandchild?"

A Dire Threat.

So far as the audience was concerned, Von Bulow always made a point of doing exactly as he pleased. On one occasion, when a Leipzig audience insisted on recalling him, in spite -the best remedy of the kind in the of his repeated refusal to play again, world-we ask you to condemn it to all he came forward and said: "If you your friends. do not stop this applause, I will play all Bach's forty-eight preludes and fugues from beginning to end!"
